“There is a life-
affirming spark within you which constantly nudges you towards saying yes to life.
Create your YES list,
a list of all the things
you want to say YES
to, and be prepared to be amazed.”
—Linda MacDonald

‘Be prepared to be amazed!’

You know all that stuff you can’t stand, are sick and tired of, definitely do not want more of? The stuff you’re now mentally shouting “No!” at?

I bring these kinds of things to your attention momentarily only because they already have your attention so much of the time anyway.

And as our pal Wallace Wattles tells us, all that focus, faith, and feeling on unwanted things just prolongs them and brings us more of the same.

In effect, every time you say “no” to something you are actually saying “yes” to it!

So since you’re saying yes so much anyway, why not say yes to all the things you want instead of the rest?

It’s easy: Just take all your “no’s” and flip ‘em around!

There’s unimaginable power in this, especially in taking time to think about what you want to say yes to—to “contemplate your clear mental image.”

And when you write it down, it begins—in that moment—to move from formless into form. It’s no longer just a thought. It has begun to have a shape and a presence, right there on the paper.

And soon, if you continue to say yes, you’ll see it in your world, too.

Play with this, my friend. Let it be fun, let it be easy. “Enter at once into the full enjoyment” and just say YES!

2. Fold in half along solid line.

3. Fold again.

1. Cut out along dashed line.

Take a few minutes to print, cut out and fold this handy mini-booklet and start your own Yes! List. ENJOY it as you begin and as you carry it with you to add to or review throughout your day. Now, let yourself start to notice how the world around you and the people in it miraculously begin to change as you begin to say YES instead of NO!
